MOBILE ADVISORY TEAM AGAINST RIGHT WING EXTREMISM

Our advisory services are for those who are willing or are forced to face the challenges of right-wing extremism, racism or anti-Semitism. In this way, we are able to support and connect people who are committed to safeguarding a peaceful and democratic society where they live. Our main focus is on the needs and resources of those receiving advice.

ADVICE IN SPECIFIC CASES

We provide advice e.g., in the following cases and problem areas:

- Far-right activities in clubs, associations, or action groups
- Racist or anti-Semitic remarks and graffiti
- Renting of premises by far-right groups
- Smear campaigns against minority groups
- Far-right meetings and events such as demonstrations, rallies, or concerts.

We offer confidential and on-site advisory services free of charge.

SUPPORT AND TRAINING

Besides case-specific support, we also provide long-term assistance to clubs, associations and organisations seeking to develop strategies and prevention concepts against all forms of right-wing extremism. We also train people who want to raise awareness about this issue and those who are committed to this cause.

NETWORKING AND PARTNERSHIP

A well-organised civil society network is essential for dealing with right-wing extremism, racism, and anti-Semitism. This is why we are part of a state-wide, professional advisory infrastructure and maintain regular contact with a number of local initiative groups, alliances and round tables.

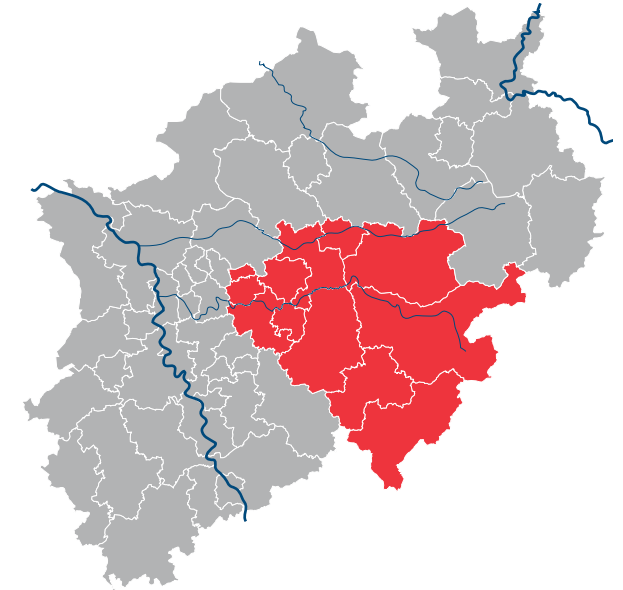

RESEARCH, ANALYSIS AND DOCUMENTATION

Our advisory and educational work is based on the permanent research and documentation of far-right incidents and infrastructures. Using analyses and handouts, we provide information on issues relating to right-wing extremism and give recommendations on how to face these challenges.
